

Terms And Conditions

Definitions:

The term “Firm” represents SMS Associates.

“Website” is www.smsassociateslaw.com

“User” is any person who is using/accessing the website.

General Terms:

The information and content provided on the website maybe changed at any time without any notice.

The use of this website does not amount to an attorney-client privilege between the User and the Firm. This website just gives information regarding the work and practice of the Firm.

The information provided on the website is correct and accurate when its posted. We try and update the information as frequently as we can, but we do not guarantee that the information is accurate and correct at all times. Therefore, the Firm has no liabilities regarding the information and the accuracy of the same.

The Firm reserves the right to alter, remove, add, modify or change the information on the website without any previous notice.

Confidentiality:

All the interactions done through the website would be confidential. Any data submitted through the website, or it’s contact page would be confidential between the user and the Firm. Any data which would not come under confidentiality would be informed to the user at the earliest.

Intellectual Property of the Website and its data:

All the data present on the website belongs to the Firm and therefore all the Intellectual Property regarding the same belongs to the firm. No one can use the information without the permission of the Firm otherwise they would be liable for infringement of Intellectual Property.

No Liability:

The user is accessing the website on their own discretion. The Firm is not liable for the User's inability to use the website or for any issues with the working of the website.

Jurisdiction:

The Terms are governed by the Laws of India. The courts of Mumbai, Maharashtra would have the sole jurisdiction for any disputes regarding the Terms of the website.